Delivery vs. Build On-Site

Delivery

Shed World can either deliver your shed fully assembled or build it on-site. Deliverability depends on the available access to where you would like your shed placed, your city/location, and the shed size.

Build On-Site

If we cannot deliver your shed fully assembled, we will send out one of our experienced build on-site crews to construct your shed at your home or business. It is of the utmost importance that you provide our crews with a level site in which to do so. Our experienced builders will not be able to perform any leveling, as the quality of our products place considerable time constraints on our builders. Shed World does offer reputable, trustworthy referrals for leveling. Just ask one of our sales representatives. In addition to a level site, our construction crews are going to need a minimum of two feet of clearance around the perimeter of your shed and six feet of clearance over your shed. This allows the needed space to construct a quality product.

Other Things to Consider

When purchasing a shed: permits, zoning and setbacks should be considered and are the responsibility of the buyer. Shed World is not responsible for the compliance of any of the above. Painting is also the responsibility of the customer. Painting increases the life of your shed and protects your investment.

Shed FAQ

- Do we need a permit? Most areas require permits for structures over 120 square feet. Check with your local building department.
- Does the shed need to sit on a concrete slab? No. The sheds are designed to sit on any level surface.
- Is the shed built on my property? The shed can be delivered pre-assembled if you have the access to do so, or it can be built on your property.
- How long does it take to construct a shed? One day for most of our buildings, but two days on a few of the larger buildings.
